Publication Stage :

(B1) U.S. Patent (no pre-grant pub.) after Jan. 2, 2001

Abstract :

An improved expandable well screen and associated methods of servicing a subterranean well provide enhanced functionality, while increasing the convenience of manufacture and deployment of the screen, and reducing the screen's cost. In one described embodiment of the invention, an expandable well screen includes a pleated woven metal filter element disposed overlying a perforated base pipe. When the screen is appropriately positioned within a well, an expanding tool is utilized to radially enlarge the base pipe and filter element.
